Of all the blighting habits destructive both to the physical and immortal part of man, no other is so remorseless as the appedown a good sum of money, and giving Mr. Grover an address. A police officer came down from Holyoke found Hall and arrested to be broken, and the unfortunate victim of to be broken, and the unfortunate victim of him and he is now lodged in the station the poison doomed to a death which carried with it the tortures of the damned. The chief feature of the disease is that the desire for the drug is gratified in secret, and this fact renders the statistics relative to opium eaters so difficult to optain. But an enormously increased consumption of the deadly drug is unerringly attested by the growing demand. Sentinel reporters have frequently interviewed the druggists of the city in regard to the alarming increase, and a fair presentation of the facts shows an unenviable state of affairs. The writer has lately talked with Dr. S. B. Collins, residing in La Porte, and who claims to have discovered an infallible remedy for the poison that has stood the crucial test of ten years. During that time he has been actively engaged in the special practice of curing opium eaters. and of course his information must be good. He says that if the habit is not discouraged by judicious legislation its fearful effects will soon be more perceptible than the rav-ages of alcohol; and that, compared with opium, alcohol is the merest trifle. In 1869 the importation of opium into the United States amounted to 90,997 pounds, Miss Simpson, of the New Albany schools, and Prof. Allen, of the Madison schools, bis partner but the second force, he, H., will take a pastor and the disconstruction of the Madison schools, bis partner but the second force of the disconstruction of the Madison schools, bis partner but the second force of the disconstruction of the Madison schools, bis partner but the second force of the disconstruction of the Madison schools, bis partner but the second force of the disconstruction of the Madison schools, but the second force of the Madison schools are second force of the Madison schools. 228,742 pounds, while in 1880 it had increased 140 per cent. In 1876 we imported 4,000 ounces of morphia, and in 1880 at New York Rumor has it that Horace Heston, night alone 8,800 ounces were entered. These turnkey at the Central Station, challenged statistics do not take into account the amount smuggled, which is very large. The Society of Friends has called attention to the The fight is to take place in the vicinity of Fred Balz's slaughter house, and Jesse being the challenged party chose bladders for the challenged party chose bladders organizations. Benevolence can proceed in no avenue more commendable. The Tem-Mutton breads of sheep are rapidly coming to the front, and America is likely to in the United States, and that the number is increasing at the rate of fifteen or twenty per cent. annually. Only by the increased demand for the drug can the growth be estimated, for it is the disposition of the victim to long conceal the habit. The number of consumers of opium is in some States from three to six per cent. of the population.

In a majority of instances the atrocious and insiduous poison is at first prescribed by physicians. But the average patient does not go longer than six months until he finds himself within the grasp of a monster. At first the impressions of the victim are delicious. Nothing can exceed the felicity of an opium dream in the early stages of the

"While the fond soul, Wrapped in gay visions of unreal bliss, Still paints the illusive form."

It is a poetical theme, but then comes a time in the experience of the sufferer when an awful change sweeps the spirit of his dreams. Suicide is then the uppermost question of thought, but the elements of cowardice are quickened in the victim's nature, which adds to the torture until feeling may be voiced in the fallen angel's adieu to Heaven: "Farewell, happy fields, where joy forever dwells; Hail, horrors, hail, and thou profoundest hell Receive thy sole possesser."

Auretta Hoyt is industriously lecturing in this part of the State against alcoholism and every shade of political belief that does not refuse to tolerate the tippling custom. I have twice enjoyed the felicity of hearing her. Though in neither instance was the audience large, the words of the speaker were no less earnest, and her honesty is doubtless equal to her ferver. But the proposition to prohibit is one to which the German element, apparently preponderating here, does not take to with any marked degree of alacrity. The statistics of the mischievous influence of beer or Bourbon, however appalling, are marshalled before the drinker in vain. An appetite for malt is as natural to him as the tongue in which he chooses to make love to his wife. He claims it as a part of his life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness, in which all lands of the free will protect him.
"The proper study for mankind is man," and no department of human knowledge is more fascinating to me than the beast's hankering for something that slays. Whether in an opium compound or Kentucky distillation makes no difference, and I hear a temperance speaker or opium doctor with equal interest. JAP TURPEN. Michigan City, Ind., June 12, 1882.

The Beauty of Jennie Cramer. When the body of Jennie Cramer was discovered by Uncle Asa Curtiss, the clamdigger, early on the morning of August 6 last, in the waters of Long Island Sound that skirt Savin Rock, it was attired in clothes quite characteristic of the girl. The dress was of pure white, tastefully trimmed count low at the neck. Her bet was of Charles Mayer & Co. dress was of pure white, tastefully trimmed and cut low at the neck. Her hat was of the Gainsborough style, turned back from the forehead and embellished with feathers and flowers to add to its attractiveness. Her stockings were of fashionable hue and her shoes new and of the best make. Around her neck was a double row of silver beads and on her fingers were several rings, one of them having a gold dollar pendant, on which were engraved her initials. As seen a few days before her death in this costume Jennie looked very attractive, but did not give one the impression that she was possessed of an over-abundance of modesty. It could be seen at a glance that she was fond of admiration and an acquaintance could easily be formed. The girl was of a striking type of beauty. Her eyes were black, large and lustrous, with drooping, dark eyelashes. Her features were regular, the mouth particularly pretty, with bright red lips and just a trifling inclination to pout. Her teeth were regular and white, and her skin of a remarks bloomistic and purity. This remarkable whiteness and purity. This gave credence to the report that she was an habitual arsenic eater, but those who knew her in early childhood say that her skin was always white and clear. Her form was well rounded and her carriage graceful. Weekly Bank Statement, NEW YORK, June 17.—The following is the weekly bank statement: Loans, decrease, $962,500;
